

Centennial Lecture Series

A century of public service

The Foreign Policy Association presents

THE CENTENNIAL LECTURE

with

PETER KROGH

PROFESSOR AND FORMER DEAN

GEORGETOWN SCHOOL OF FOREIGN SERVICE

speaking on

“The Great War, Wilson, and the FPA”

Tuesday, November 7, 2017

Registration: 5:30 p.m.

Lecture: 6:00 p.m.

Reception to follow

CENTURY ASSOCIATION

7 West 43RD Street

New York, NY

RSVP by email to: rscott@fpa.org

The Foreign Policy Association’s year-long Centennial Lecture Series, commencing in spring 2017, will celebrate 100 years of commitment to fostering an educated public discourse on the most influential topics in U.S. foreign policy. The Foreign Policy Association’s Centennial Lecture Series will feature extraordinary speakers, who will take the long view and imagine the future in their respective disciplines. The importance of providing citizens with accessible, in-depth, non-partisan material is vital to future world peace and prosperity. In one of his final public addresses, President Franklin D. Roosevelt told the Foreign Policy Association that “In a democracy the Government functions with the consent of the whole people. The latter must be guided by the facts.” Now more than ever, this message continues to have resonance, and will remain the guiding principle and goal of the Foreign Policy Association.

This lecture is generously supported by Delta Airlines