

The Heyman Center for the Humanities (HCH), working closely with the Arts & Sciences, will appoint fellows for the academic year 2018-19. These year-long fellowships will provide four junior and four senior Columbia faculty with course relief that will allow them to reduce their teaching loads to a minimum of one course per semester in order to conduct research and to participate in a regular weekly seminar.

Additionally, we will offer four fellowships to post-MPhil graduate students to join the 2018-19 cohort of Heyman Center Fellows. These fellowships will allow graduate students to join a year-long faculty seminar, chaired by the faculty director of the Heyman Center, and provide them with a $5,000 research allowance.

Faculty fellowships are open to all Columbia and Barnard tenured and tenure-track faculty.
