

Columbia | Economics: Ad Hoc Workspace for PhD Students

Workspace available for Econ PhD students (in addition to regular Econ carrels assigned through Amy and the 5th floor 503-7 area under AGES control).

CELSS Lab: IAB 505 (keypad access code: #36140)

Economics PhD students can use the CELSS Lab as workspace when it is not being used for experiments/testing/consulting. The lab is open for experiments/testing/consulting as follows:

Mon: 12-2pm, 4-6pm

Tue: 2-6pm, 6.30-8pm*

Wed: 2-6pm

Thu: 10-11.30pm*, 2-6pm

Fri: 10am-12pm, 4-6pm

The lab is always occupied in slots marked with a *. The lab may also be occupied in other slots during the hours above. Please consult http://celss.iserp.columbia.edu/public/show_calendar.php to confirm availability and see additional guidelines:

- No food and drink
- No usage of lab computers
- No removal of the pads protecting the screens of the computers
- Students cannot leave their belongings in the lab and they have to clean up their desks / the whiteboard when they leave the lab
- Experimenters who need to test their programs will be given priority to use the lab

Students who need lockable storage should contact AGES for access to lockers in 503.

IAB 1116 (West Wing, PER Visitor Office)

While primarily reserved for speakers/PER and other visitors, IAB 1116 is available to students when not in other uses. Each week a schedule will be posted at the room to indicate availability. If the room is needed by the Department for an ad hoc or emergency situation, students will need to vacate the room. All occupants of the room should be careful to remove food and garbage. Students will not be given keys to the room.

IAB 1006A (TA Office)

This is the TA office and the schedule is on the door. Whenever the office is not used by TAs (TF, TAI, anyone assigned to a particular course) for course-related events, the office can be used by anyone. It is always open.

IAB 1101/1027 (Classrooms)

Available for student use when not in use for departmental courses, workshops, colloquia, and events. [1102 is a Registrar room, it does not 'belong' to the Department.]

NOTE

Please do not sit at staff workstations. Please do not use 1128 which is a co-shared space with other units. The Department continues to explore other options.