

eTip is a NYC and San Francisco based fintech startup that is empowering service based workers to earn tips for their personalized service. Our mission is to empower such service workers to be tipped adequately by customers for good service. We are seed-funded by Cassis Capital and are looking to secure venture funding by end of the year.

We are looking for part-time business analyst intern to join our team. This role can be converted to a full-time position. We expect the intern to put in approximately 5-7 hours a week, and they will be compensated by $200 per month. Interested candidates please reach out to Shivam at shivam@etip.io with their resume, some writing samples and some words on why they think they'll be a good fit for the role.

Some key skills set that we're looking for:

- Is currently a business or economics major with a great academic record (GPA 3.3+)
- Is an excellent writer, effectively able to communicate complex ideas in a structured approach
- Must demonstrate great researching capabilities and data-driven analysis
- Quick learner, interested in the payments and the tipping industry and/or building a startup

Responsibilities:

- Assisting the head of product with formulating the business plan and investor deck
- Producing 2 blog posts on a weekly basis to highlight the issues in the tipping industry
- Any additional customer research that's needed to assist the company's strategy
