

Internship Opportunity

Internship Description

Kroll Bond Rating Agency, Inc. (KBRA) is seeking an intern to support our growing KBRA Analytics Business based in our New York office. KBRA Analytics is launching a new data and analytics platform catering to capital markets professionals (investment bankers, asset managers, and other financial services professionals). The intern will support core aspects of our product development process along with our data QA effort. The intern will work closely with our product development team and gain experience with a broad array of financial statement, equity and fixed income market data as well as transaction data (securities offerings and mergers & acquisitions).

Internship Qualifications

- For current undergraduate or master's degree students (concentration in finance and accounting)
- Exceptional attention to detail
- Ability to take initiative and work independently, as well as work closely with partners in a collaborative environment
- Strong appetite for knowledge, especially in data and analytics
- Experience with financial accounting concepts required
- Microsoft Excel skills required

Duration

- As an intern, you will be able to work up to 30 hours per week and we can be flexible with the hours/days. We expect this internship to last at least through the end of December 2019 with a possibility of an extension.
