

Our analysts are well-rounded individuals who have demonstrated excellent academic performance. We look for exceptional candidates who are team-oriented leaders and passionate about solving important business problems.

ANALYST & SUMMER ANALYST

Analysts gain tremendous learning and development opportunities, both by working closely with experts, clients, and experienced consultants, and through our ongoing training programs.

Responsibilities

Work in teams that vary in size, typically including a faculty expert and senior consultants.

Make important contributions during all phases of a project — providing input on case strategy, conducting analyses, and preparing experts for testimony.

Casework has both quantitative and qualitative elements that involve key responsibilities such as conducting financial and economic modeling, examining market and industry behavior, and presenting findings to colleagues and clients.

Learning and Development

Comprehensive training in sophisticated analytical and statistical techniques.

Continuous professional growth opportunities, such as working with experienced senior staff and participating in tailored learning sessions.

Some analysts pursue graduate degrees at top-tier institutions and/or continue their career at Cornerstone Research.

Collaborative Culture

We invest in people in a number of ways, including building community and networking opportunities, mentorship, and memorable social and charitable events within local offices.

We have maintained a firm culture that is collegial, supportive, friendly, and team-oriented for more than thirty years of steady growth.

We work with strategic clients on high-profile litigation and regulatory matters.

Strategic Clients

- Financial institutions and brokerage firms
- Pharmaceutical companies, insurers, and healthcare providers
- Internet and other high-tech firms
- Energy markets participants
- Telecommunications providers
- Consulting and other professional services firms

Real-World Analyses

- Valuation of stocks, debt instruments, and derivatives
- Competition issues related to mergers, joint ventures and cartels, and the behavior of market-leading firms
- Intellectual property and the commercial value of innovation and technology
- Analysis of financial market manipulation and collusive trading allegations
- Dynamics of generic drug competition and reimbursement issues
- Impact of cost and financial accounting practices

The outcomes of our cases can have a direct and immediate impact on public policy and business strategies.
