

UCL Journal of Economics

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

The UCL Journal of Economics (UJE) is the official student-run peer-reviewed journal of the University College London Department of Economics
Submissions for our third issue are now open

We are accepting a broad range of submissions, from literature reviews to full-length research papers and academic essays, from any undergraduate student in the world.

Works relating to any sphere and niche of economics are welcome, including interdisciplinary studies with economic analysis at their core.

To read the past two issues of the journal, including submissions from Harvard, University of California Berkeley and the University of Chicago, visit our website.

DEADLINE
